EDITOR'S LETTER

SAVANNA DUTCHER
Marketing Director
18th Force Support Squadron

While some are finding it a bit difficult to stay outside, with the mosquitoes treating you like an all-you-can-eat buffet, the summer heat and humidity at their peak and the tourist crowds in full swing for the Eisa Festival and Obon holidays, I've always found comfort in the cicadas buzzing and the warm breeze easing the tension in my muscles, inviting me to slow down and breathe.

You're on island time now.

August has a way of reminding us to enjoy what's left of summer before backpacks replace beach bags. Kadena FSS has some great sales and activities for back-to-school season, giving you every excuse to soak in those last few weeks of sunshine. Don't miss our Back-to-School Movie Night and end-of-summer pool parties at Hagerstrom Pool, where you can cool off and make a few more summer memories.

Though we don't have Coachella, we're bringing you the next best thing. Craftchella, hosted by Kadena Arts and Crafts, is a fan favorite. So, all you crafty hippie babes, embrace the summer outfit (you know, the one you've been putting off wearing because it might be a little "too much") and make your way to Craftchella, where we're bringing fun for all ages. We'll have the beloved Oki manhole cover painting, the Hacksaw Creation Station, food trucks and so much more. You can also enter to win a Cricut machine, cornhole set or 3D printer in our prize drawing. It's the perfect excuse to spend the day creating something memorable with friends and family.

The Teen Center is introducing a new event to shine a light on bullying: Cruising for a Cause. We encourage people of all ages to come out, show their support and enjoy an awesome car show while helping raise awareness for an important cause.

The event will feature custom cars, motorcycles and a family-friendly "Hottest Wheels" showcase, where children can display their favorite toy cars, bikes, trucks or other ride-on toys in a designated safe area. Small medals will be awarded to all participants in the showcase, and trophies will recognize standout vehicles in the main car show, making it a fun day for the whole family and another opportunity to gather with the community.

As you know, we're in the thick of PCS season, and with that we'd like to welcome all you fresh new faces to our beautiful little slice of the world. Whether you're here for a few years or just getting settled, we hope Okinawa feels a little more like home with each passing day. In this issue of Venture, we're spotlighting all the wonderful ways FSS is here to serve you. You'll also find an article on the hiring process at Kadena and how you can join our mission.

So, whether your August is filled with beach days, festival nights, discovering a new favorite spot or simply enjoying a slower pace, we hope this issue inspires you to get out, explore and make the most of everything Kadena FSS has to offer. Here's to salty air, unforgettable sunsets and making the last weeks of summer some of the best yet.

Best,

TŌGYŪ

Article by Lydia Rothstein | Photography by Marina Chayka

There is something electrifying about the atmosphere inside an Okinawan bullfighting arena. Families pack into the stands with snacks in hand, children lean over the railings and the air is filled with anticipation as people talk and wait. Then the gates open, two massive bulls step into the ring and the crowd goes completely quiet. It feels as though centuries of tradition are unfolding just a few feet away.

Locally, the sport is known as tōgyū in Japanese and ushiōrasē in the Okinawan dialect, and it is nothing like the Spanish version many people picture. There are no matadors, swords or bloodshed. Instead, two bulls go head-to-head in a contest of strength, determination and instinct. The goal is simple: Push the other bull backward until it turns away or retreats. Once there is a clear winner, handlers quickly separate the animals, and both bulls leave the ring together.

The sport dates back to the 17th century, when farmers gathered to test the strength of their working cattle after long days in the fields. What began as informal competitions gradually became organized events and remains an important part of community life across Okinawa, especially in Uruma, Okinawa City and Motobu. Today, standout bulls are treated like local celebrities. Fans know them by name and follow their careers with the same enthusiasm others reserve for baseball or sumo.

Watching a match is not just about the animals. It is also about the people who work closely with them. Before each bout, handlers guide their bulls into the arena, keeping them calm and encouraging them as they prepare to compete. During the contest, handlers remain nearby, carefully watching the animals and stepping in as soon as the match naturally reaches its conclusion. The relationship between handler and bull is built over years of daily care and training.

The contests themselves are surprisingly tactical. Some bulls charge with explosive bursts of power, while others rely on patience, wearing down their opponent with steady pressure. A match may last only a few seconds or continue for several minutes, with momentum shifting back and forth as the crowd cheers each advantage. It feels less like a fight and more like a test of endurance, where patience can be just as important as strength.

Outside the arena, the atmosphere resembles a neighborhood festival. Food stalls serve Okinawan favorites, longtime supporters gather to catch up, and visitors are often welcomed into an event that remains deeply rooted in the local community. Even those attending for the first time quickly understand why families return year after year.

What stays with many visitors is not just the spectacle but the strong sense of community surrounding it. Okinawan bullfighting offers a glimpse into the islands through traditions rooted in agriculture, local pride and generations of careful stewardship.

Those interested in attending can purchase tickets through Kadena ITT*.*

Long after the final match ends and the arena empties, it is the connection among people, animals and heritage that linger, offering a deeper understanding of Okinawa beyond its beaches and turquoise waters.

Why Summer Grooming Matters in Okinawa

Tropical Heat Challenges
Okinawa's humidity can cause matting, hot spots, skin irritation and overheating. Regular grooming helps prevent these issues and keeps pets cool and comfortable.

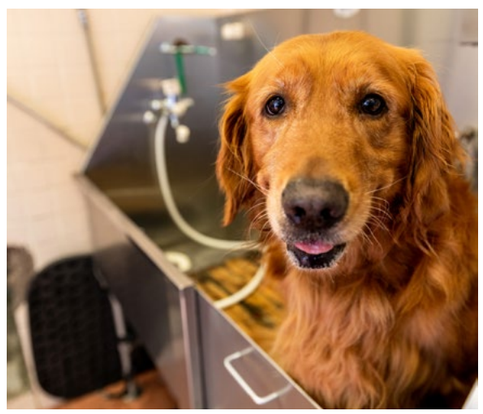

Shedding Season
Many pets shed heavily during summer. Deshedding treatments reduce loose fur, improve airflow to the skin and help keep your home cleaner.

Schedule Your Summer Grooming Appointment
Our grooming team is ready to help your pets stay cool, clean and comfortable all summer. Whether you are new to Kadena or a longtime resident, we are here to support your family's furry companions through Okinawa's hottest months.

Grooming Salon
Open Monday through Saturday, with walk-in nail trims available from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. A variety of grooming products is available to suit every pet's needs, including hypoallergenic, oatmeal and deshedding options.

Welcome to FSS

Article by Ela Toombs

I still remember arriving in Okinawa four years ago after nearly 30 hours of travel. The warm, humid air was unlike anything we had experienced before. Exhausted but relieved, we checked into Shogun Inn late that evening. A hot shower, a comfortable room and the realization that we had finally reached our new home made all the difference.

The next morning, it was time to begin in-processing. Even after nine PCS moves, I still enjoy discovering what each new installation has to offer. One of the best ways to get acquainted with Kadena is by attending the Information Fair hosted by the Military and Family Readiness Center. Held every Thursday morning at the Rocker Club as part of newcomers orientation, the fair connects newcomers and long-time residents with base agencies, local businesses, and the many programs available through FSS.

Families will find a wealth of resources. Child & Youth Programs staff are available to answer questions about childcare and youth services for all ages. The Teen Center offers clubs, field trips, classes, dances, lock-ins and special events that help teens stay active and connected. Children ages 9 to 12 can explore opportunities through the Youth Center, including art, STEAM activities and culture clubs that build practical skills and foster cultural connections.

For those pursuing educational goals, the Education Center provides support with tuition assistance, testing services, degree planning and career counseling. Home to two universities, it is an excellent resource for personal and professional growth.

After exploring the Information Fair, stop by the Daily Grind for a coffee and a treat. When it comes to dining, FSS offers a variety of options across the installation. Enjoy a burger and entertainment at Hanabi's Restaurant and Bar, take in ocean views at Seaside Restaurant, grab brick-oven pizza at Chippers at Chibana Golf Course or enjoy familiar favorites at Chili's.

August is the hottest month in Okinawa, making it a great time to enjoy the island's water activities. Hagerstrom Pool offers recreational swimming, waterslides and obstacle courses, while Fairchild Pool provides lap swimming and year-round lessons for children and adults.

If you prefer the ocean, Kadena Marina offers diving and snorkeling classes as well as kayak, paddleboards and jet ski rentals. Information, Tickets & Travel and Outdoor Recreation also organize excursions to local beaches and nearby islands, making it easy to experience Okinawa's natural beauty.

Looking for indoor fun? Emery Lanes is a great place to gather with family and friends for bowling and seasonal specials.

Moving to a new base can feel overwhelming, but it also marks the start of an exciting new chapter. At Kadena, FSS is committed to helping you feel welcome, supported and connected from day one. Whether you are pursuing education, finding activities for your family, enjoying great food or exploring Okinawa, there is something here for everyone.

For more information about FSS programs, services, events and opportunities, be sure to look through the Venture Magazine or visit kadenafss.com to start exploring all that your new home has to offer.

If you've lived here long enough, there's a good chance you've faced a late-night pet emergency. Maybe your dog ate something that definitely wasn't food, or your cat decided to be extra curious. Whatever the case, finding reliable after-hours veterinary information in the middle of a stressful situation can feel like its own emergency. Outdated websites and dead-end searches don't help when time matters.

After finding myself in that situation, I went looking for a better resource. As it turns out, the answer was posted right on my veterinarian's door.

The Okinawa Veterinary Medical Association operates an after-hours emergency veterinary service that connects pet owners with the clinic on duty. Participating clinics rotate coverage around the island according to a scheduled roster, meaning the veterinarian on call may not be the clinic closest to your home. The service is intended for emergency cases only and operates from 8 to 11 p.m.

One thing to keep in mind is that English-speaking staff are not guaranteed. Language availability can vary depending on who is on duty that evening. That doesn't mean you shouldn't call. It simply means a little preparation can go a long way.

Many newer smartphones offer built-in live translation features that can translate conversations in real time. Some devices can translate phone calls directly, while others allow voice-to-text translation through apps. If your phone supports it, take a few minutes to explore the feature before you need it.

As with most things in Okinawa, a little planning ahead can make life much easier.
Save the number. Test your phone translation. Then, hopefully, you'll never need any of it. But if your pet decides that common sense is optional at 9 p.m. on a Wednesday, you'll be glad you did.

Navigating Your Career

The Insider's Guide to Military Spouse Preference (MSP)

Securing employment after a Permanent Change of Station (PCS) can be challenging. For eligible spouses, the Military Spouse Preference (MSP) program is a powerful tool to fast-track your Federal Service career.

Bottom Line Up Front (BLUF)

The MSP program provides priority placement for spouses of active-duty service members relocating via PCS. If you meet the qualifications and are among the "best qualified" candidates, your preference places you at the front of the hiring line for Non-Appropriated Fund (NAF) positions.

Are You Eligible?

The Core Requirements

To successfully claim your preference, you must meet strict timing and geographical rules.

Criteria	The Fine Print
The Marriage Deadline	You must have married your military sponsor prior to the date their PCS orders were officially issued.
Location, Location	You must be on a dependents-authorized move. Your preference only applies to jobs within the commuting area of the new duty station.
OCONUS Rules	Moving overseas? Your preference does not activate until you physically arrive at the foreign duty location.
The 6-Month Window	If your sponsor is within six months of their tour rotation date, hiring managers have the discretion to pass over your application for permanent, continuing positions.

How Prior Experience Impacts Your Application

Your previous work history in the federal government directly dictates how you can use your MSP.

Your Experience Level	How Your Preference Applies
First-Time Federal Applicants	Your preference applies to all positions you qualify for up to the NF-III payband, Child and Youth (CY) positions and equivalent hourly Craft and Trade jobs.
Prior Federal Service	Your preference is capped. It only applies if the payband you are applying for is no higher than the highest grade/payband you previously held in the federal system.

The "One-Time" Rule

What Terminates Your Preference?

Your MSP is a golden ticket, but it can only be used to secure one continuing (permanent) position per PCS move. It is crucial to understand what actions will permanently end your preference for your current location.

Action	Impact on Your MSP Status
Accepting a "Regular" Position	Terminates MSP. Accepting a full-time or part-time continuing position ends your preference.
Declining a "Regular" Position	Terminates MSP. If you are offered a continuing job you applied for and you turn it down, you lose your preference.
Flexible (FLEX) Positions	Keeps MSP Intact. You can accept, decline, and work as many FLEX (non-continuing, 0-40 hours/week) positions as you want without losing your preference.
Skipping an Interview	Terminates MSP. Refusing to participate in standard recruitment procedures (like skipping an interview) will void your preference.

Your Application Checklist

When you are ready to apply, NAF Human Resources will need specific documentation to verify your status. Ensure your application explicitly states that you are claiming Military Spouse Preference.

Required Document	Purpose
PCS Orders	Must explicitly identify a dependents-authorized move and show the sponsor's reporting date.
Marriage Verification	A marriage license or official equivalent to prove the marriage occurred before orders were cut.
Current Resume	Must demonstrate that you meet the basic qualifications to be considered "best qualified."

Note: Additional documentation is required if claiming preference as the spouse of a 100% disabled veteran or a Gold Star spouse, such as military discharge paperwork and certified widow/widower statements.
